

SEEKING PLANS OF ASSESSMENT

Claim Made That Many Companies Do Pay The Taxes They Should Under The Law.

BETTER METHODS OF REGISTRATION

Matter Will Be Taken Up In The Next Legislature For Consideration So That New Laws Can Be Substituted For Present Ones.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—That a new system of taxing telephone companies in Wisconsin should be adopted is the opinion of State Treasurer A. H. Dahl in his report to the governor. Under the present license fee system the companies practically escape taxation and the treasurer, who was a member of the committee on taxation, during the years he was in the legislature, believes a new system should be adopted.

The present law provides that on or before the 10th day of February each year the company shall report to the state treasurer a true statement of the gross receipts from the operation of their business during the preceding year.

"The law fixes the amount to be paid as follows," says the state treasurer. "Companies whose gross receipts for the preceding year shall be over $100,000, the license fees are 4 per cent.

Companies whose gross receipts are less than $100,000 the license fees are 2 1/2 per cent. In addition to the above the companies shall pay 15 per cent of the gross receipts from exchange service to the state.

"I find that most of the telephone companies do not incorporate under the state law and consequently no record of such new companies organized, can be found in the secretary of state's office. In 1907, after having mailed statements to all the companies on our books from the preceding year and to such additional companies as we had found in newspapers and from other sources, I found, through the kindness of an officer of a telephone company forty additional companies, whose license fees were collected and amounted to $117. So much for the difficulty of locating all the companies in order to collect the taxes.

"I wish to call your attention to this seemingly absurd system of taxing telephone companies, as regards the revenues received by the state from this source.

"Thirty-eight companies pay no tax whatever to the state.

"One company pays two cents.

"Four companies pay four cents.

"Three companies pay five cents.

"Thirty-four companies pay over seven cents and less than $1.

"One company reports 9,734 miles of wire in this state, 44 transmitters, and 55 receivers and pays a tax of $25.72.

"One company owning 95 miles of wire and 150 instruments pays a state tax of 13 cents.

"One company owning 82 miles of wire and 140 instruments pays a state tax 10 cents.

"One company having 50 miles of wire and 52 instruments pays five cents in state tax.

"One company having 52 miles of wire and 53 instruments pays no state tax.

"It seems that some other system of taxing telephone companies could be devised that would be more equitable and by which the state would derive its share of taxes from this class of property."

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Baltimore, Md., November 17.—The Atlantic Deep Waterways association, which was formed for the purpose of arousing public interest in the plan of constructing deep inland waterways all the way from Boston to Key West opened a three day session here today. The attendance is unusually large and every state along the Atlantic coast is represented, as well as the Gulf states and several other states not continuous to the sea or any part of it. The principal matter before the meeting is the discussion of the plan suggested in a resolution adopted by a meeting of the delegates from the Atlantic seaboard states, held in Philadelphia some time ago. The plan recommended by the Philadelphia conference contemplates the opening of ship canals and deepening of intervening rivers and approaches from Norfolk, Va., southward to Key West, Fla., from Chesapeake bay to Delaware bay, and from the Delaware river to the Raritan river, and across Cape Cod, along the lines approved by Congress as the most practical. It is proposed that the work shall be undertaken by the federal government and that all the canals and waterways shall be free. Many prominent men are among the delegates and the list of speakers includes Congressman J. Hampton Moore, president of the association, Governor Crothers of Maryland, Mayor Mahood of Baltimore and many others.

LABOR LEADERS DINED AT THE WHITE HOUSE TONIGHT

Proposed Labor Legislation Will Be Discussed And Opinions Presented.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., November 17.—Prominent labor leaders have arrived here from various sections of the country to be the guests by invitation of President Roosevelt at a dinner to be given at the White House this evening. It is believed that this dinner will be of far reaching consequences and that it will materially influence labor legislation at the coming session of Congress. President Roosevelt has arranged this dinner with a view of discussing with prominent labor leaders the labor legislation planned by the government, and to be considered by Congress during its coming session. The president is strongly in favor of advanced labor legislation and will urge especially a broad liability bill for the benefit of government employees. He will also suggest the passage of an anti-injunction bill providing for notice and hearing. He favors also some legislation to apply to the employees of railroads engaged in interstate commerce. The president's idea is to develop a general plan of employees' insurance, in which the government and the corporations will bear their respective shares of the burden of loss. The president, although strongly in favor of progressive labor legislation, does not approve of the ultra radical views of certain labor leaders, like Samuel Gompers, Frank Morrison and several others and, as he did not think their presence would be conducive to harmony and practical results, they were omitted from the list of the invited representatives of labor. Among the guests will be Daniel J. Keefe, of the Longshoremen's Union; P. H. Morrissey of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; Warren S. Stone, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; T. J. Dolan, secretary and treasurer of the International association of Steam Shovel Men and Dredgemen; A. L. Faulkner, president of the Window Glass Workers; John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers; James Duncan, first vice president of the American Federation of Labor; T. V. Powderly, former Master Workman of the Knights of Labor; Edward Gavian, attorney of the Central Building Trades association of New York, several high officials of the administration and a few judges of the Federal courts.

CATHOLIC CONGRESS BEGINS ITS LABORS

First American Catholic Missionary Congress Discusses Many Subjects.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Nov. 17.—The missionary work in foreign lands occupied the attention of the first American Catholic Missionary Congress today. Throughout the session it was the belief of the great gathering of priests here that they had set in motion a new impetus for energetic extension of Catholic influence and for the betterment of living conditions not only in this country but abroad.

The negro question in the Catholic religion is one of the many problems which confront the congress. A tangible campaign will be started for the education of more negro priests and an appeal for their support in the missionary field will be made. There are at present only eight negro priests in the United States and most of the negro congregations are ministered to by white priests.

Another problem which is being threshed out is the home missionary work among the foreigners in the United States. It is estimated that over 10,000,000 men and women who come to the United States professing the Catholic religion have fallen away from it through being scattered in communities where they were not in touch with the faith for many years. It is to bring about conditions which will obviate this serious shrinkage that a call will be issued for more missionaries to take up the work.

BELLE GUNNESS' DEATH NOT SOLVED AS YET

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 17.—At the Lamphere trial it is expected that many of the gruesome incidents of the Gunness murders, at the famous murder farm, will again be told, but this time by the one person who undoubtedly knows more of Mrs. Gunness and her murderous methods than any other person.

The defendant has three methods by which to secure his freedom: First, if he is not guilty, he can attempt to so defend himself either by alibi or some other means, that the prosecution will be unable to get a conviction. The second method seems impossible, as it would necessitate the producing of Mrs. Gunness before the court to prove his innocence. The third is to throw himself upon the mercy of the court, if he is guilty of burning the house and killing Mrs. Gunness, as is generally supposed, and tell the whole truth concerning his relations with the arch-murderess.

Great care is being taken in the selection of a jury, and already the first panel has been exhausted.

That Ray Lamphere had confessed to his intimacy with Mrs. Belle Gunness, had chased Andrew Holcstein with a gun, that Mrs. Gunness had promised to marry Lamphere when he joined some secret society and took out insurance were the sensational facts testified to today by William Slater, friend and neighbor of the defendant in the Gunness murder trial.

EDMUND HELLER TO BE ROOSEVELT'S AFRICAN GUIDE.

Attracted by the remarkable achievements of Edmund Heller in his explorations of strange and little known lands, President Roosevelt has selected this 26-year-old Riverside (Cal.) man from lists of hundreds of scientists and naturalists of the nation, who aspired to the place to accompany him into the wilds of Africa next March.

The honor comes to the California boy not only unlooked for and unexpected. The fact of his appointment was first learned when his mother, Mrs. Marion Heller of Riverside, received a letter from the youthful explorer in which he declares that the president has selected him a cardinal university student and requested the state university museum authorities to release him for a year or so that he can accompany the Roosevelt expedition.

In this letter Heller modestly tells of the great honor offered him, gives the personnel of the party and its itinerary, and outlines some of the duties that will devolve upon him. Heller has also traveled extensively in Mexico, Central America, South America, Alaska and other lands.

Heller, when seen at the University of California, confirmed the report that he had been engaged to accompany the president to Africa. He is well known in this community and his choice by the president is a source of much gratification to the faculty and student body of the university, with whom he is connected.

It is an open secret that the president's son will not only bring down food for his party, but material for the Smithsonian Institution, Uncle Sam's scientific museum, and it will be Heller's task to classify and write up the specimens.

THE 'CURSE' OF DRINK

Most men drink because they say it doesn't hurt them and makes them feel better. Here is what the leading medical dictionary says of alcohol:

"Internally it is a powerful, mental excitant, in large doses, a depressing narcotic POISON."

He can no more stop without medical aid, than can the opium, morphine or cocaine user.

White Ribbon Remedy will remove the alcohol from his system and cause him to even hate the smell of liquor.

You don't have to get his consent to take White Ribbon Remedy as it is a perfectly harmless powder, that has neither taste, odor or color. You can give it to him in any food or drink, even in plain water.

REPUBLIC OR DEMOCRACY?

"This government was founded by the fathers of the constitution as a republic."

"Two great perils of today are that our republican form of government may be turned into either a plutocracy or an oligarchy. Of the two, oligarchy is the most to be dreaded."

"An oligarchy is the rule of the multitude; in other words, mobocracy. An oligarchy is an abuse or perversion of a democracy which, to use the definition of the Standard dictionary, is 'a political system in which government is directly exercised or controlled by the people collectively.'"

"As oligarchy is a peculiar peril of a democracy, so plutocracy is a peculiar peril of a republic. A plutocracy is a wealthy class in a political community who control the administration of the government by means of their wealth. A republic is a state in which the sovereignty resides in the people and the administration lodges in officers elected by and representing the people."

"To such an extent had plutocracy obtained control of the machinery of our republican government that there developed a movement to break the power of the great corporations and to prevent the multi-millionaires from gaining complete political power."

"Up to a certain point this movement was entirely natural and legitimate. It is necessary at all times to guard against the insidious approaches of plutocratic power in a republic. It is necessary to protect ourselves against the abuses of corruption and bribery and the excessive use of money in elections."

"But as in all such movements it was carried to excess, at first it was directed only against the abuses of wealth, and then against wealth itself. At first it was aimed at plutocracy, and then it took the form of an attempt to substitute for the republic a form of government a government that would be more of a democracy than a representative people. In other words, as a protection against the peril of plutocracy it is proposed by many to create a form of democracy, and in doing this the country runs the risk of mobocracy."

"As created by the constitution, the United States senate is the greatest representative deliberative body in the world—a true type of republican government. But multi-millionaires began to break into the senate with the stimulus and skeleton keys of great wealth. Railroads and corporations deemed it necessary that each took the necessary way to put him there."

"To get rid of this evil, to prevent any senatorial oligarchy from gaining control of the country, a certain class of reformers advocated a change in the constitution so that senators should be elected by popular vote instead of by the legislatures. The other way, that of breaking the power of plutocracy without changing the constitution and disturbing the true balance of our republican government, seemed too slow an operation for these reformers. To cry out for a larger degree of democracy was easier and more direct."

"In accord with the spirit of our republican institutions there developed early in the life of the government a system of conventions to nominate candidates for office, these conventions composed of delegates chosen by enrolled members of the different parties. But this excellent system, in the course of time, became subject to the control of bosses often representing financial interests, another development of plutocracy."

"It seemed too hard a task to destroy bosses as a connecting link between the sellers and purchasers of law, so certain reformers have cried out in favor of direct nominations, another approach to that democracy which is subject to the peril of mob rule."

"Again, the legislatures of the states too often came under the control of financial interests routing protection, and the reformers to meet this evil proposed the initiative and the referendum. In other words, government by the people directly, instead of by the people through their chosen representatives."

"At every point the remedy proposed is a change in the system of our government away from the republic to the democracy. And in escaping the peril of plutocracy this change would bring us face to face with the peril of mobocracy."

"This plain statement of facts which exist and are not clearly understood, is from the Wall Street Journal. With threatened danger on either side, the importance of wise and conservative action will be recognized."

"The danger for the primary law, the independent voter, the election of senators by the people, and a lot of impractical reform measures now before the people, tend to the development of the mobocracy spirit, and are dangerous on that account. The fathers provided wisely for the future of the republic, and we can afford to be content."

PROSPERITY'S SLOGAN

"Every businessman who is obeying the law may go ahead with all the energy in his possession; every enterprise which is within the statutes may proceed without fear of interference from the administration, when acting legally; but all interests within the jurisdiction of the federal government may expect a rigid enforcement of the laws against dishonest methods."

"With these reassuring words from President-elect Taft, the day after election, every doubt was removed and today, all over the land, the busy hum of machinery announces the return of confidence, and the eye of a new prosperity."

"The discussion of predatory wealth, whatever that is, and of undesirable citizens, is a thing of the past, and the court of public opinion will no longer be the court of final appeal. The business of the country will be let alone long enough to recuperate and adjust itself to conditions, and as soon as the tariff problem is settled and out of the way, the last disturbing element will be removed."

"The next administration is full of hopeful promise. Secretary Taft is peculiarly fitted for the high office to which he has been elected. Justice, tempered with fairness, will characterize his work, as it always has and the confidence already invited will develop as time progresses, until fully restored."

"The Prosperity League, organized at St. Louis last summer, has disbanded. President Simmons says of its work that 'Results far better than we had expected were obtained. Among the most important of these was the visit to President Roosevelt, which resulted in his not sending any more messages to congress or doing anything that had the appearance of being an attack upon railroads or other large corporations.'"

"There will be no occasion for any such visits during President-elect Taft's administration because there will be no erratic or impulsive action in the work of reform."

THE FAITHFUL DOG

Two little girls came down Second street, the other day, trundling a baby's cab. The bird dog "Hunter" was racing up and down the street, but never far away from the children, for in the cab was little Annette Wilcox, his playmate and constant companion.

Presently the cab was left in the middle of the street, while the little girls raced back up the hill in search of something they had lost. Then the faithful dog came over and stood guard by the deserted baby, and anyone who approached discovered that he was ready to defend the child against all comers.

Annette and Hunter were inseparable, and the love of the dog for the child was so unselfish that it elicited comment and admiration. The child mourns today because some miscreant wantonly shot the dog last Sunday afternoon, and then left him helpless by the roadside, in his suffering.

The lower courts are too slow to meet the demands of government, and so the Standard Oil case will be taken directly to the United States supreme court on the plea that speedy justice can only be secured in the higher court. The court of appeals refused to reopen the case.

The commission appointed by the President to investigate farm conditions has been enlarged to seven members. The farmers all over the country are requested to meet in school districts, December 15th, to discuss various topics of mutual interest, such as, "The Efficiency of the Rural Schools"; "Farmers Organizations"; "The Question of Farm Labor"; "The Need of Good Roads"; "Improved Postal Facilities"; "Sanitary Conditions on the Farm." That much good will result from united action is not a question of doubt.

For lack of something better to discuss, the papers just now are making a great ado about the postal deficit, which is said to amount to some $17,000,000 for 1908. In the name of sense, what's the difference? This is the only department of government which is asked to be self-supporting, and if it is really necessary that it should be, which it ain't, the result can speedily be accomplished by cutting out the franking privilege.

HAVE YOU HAD THIS EXPERIENCE?

A gentleman called last week and being a personal friend said that he wanted to have me estimate the cost of dental work necessary to put his teeth in good order. I set a fair price on good work, but he would not agree to let me do the work, thinking that he could get it done cheaper in Chicago. He went to Chicago and spent a week there to have the work done. Last week his wife called to have me do her work which amounted to quite a bill, and told me that her husband had his work done in Chicago, but the final cost was two and a half times my estimate and that he had been troubled since then with severe toothache. Her work she has said since then has been very satisfactory.

MISS ELIZABETH FOSTER WILCOX AND MR. HUGH CHISHOLM LEIGHTON.

WEDDING MARCH BY KRELL

Ceremony Performed at Home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Harris by Rev. R. C. Denison.

At four o'clock this afternoon the Rev. R. C. Denison pronounced the words which united in marriage Miss Elizabeth Foster Wilcox of this city and Mr. Hugh Chisholm Leighton of Portland, Maine, the ceremony being performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Harris on Sinclair street. Miss Vera Wilcox, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor and Mr. Carlton Leighton of Portland, Maine, a brother of the groom, acted as best man. Little Miss Esther Harris was the flower girl and Master James Harris the ring-bearer. The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion with southern holly and pink roses. The bride was gown in white satin and carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley, while Miss Vera Wilcox, the maid of honor, was dressed in pink satin and carried a bouquet of American beauties. Immediately preceding the ceremony Mrs. A. J. Harris of Rockford rendered a beautiful vocal solo and the wedding march was played by Krell's orchestra of Chicago.

Following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Leighton held a short reception for the guests at the ceremony, after which dinner was served at small tables.

Mr. and Mrs. Leighton left this evening and will go directly to New York, where they will spend some time. They expect to leave about the first of January for Europe. After the first of April they will be at home at the Lafayette Hotel, Portland, Maine.

CALE LET OUT ON OWN RECOGNIZANCE

Authorities at Fond du Lac Were Willing to Allow Him to Remain in Custody of His Father.

When it was ascertained in a conference over the telephone yesterday afternoon that the Fond du Lac authorities were willing to leave James Cale in the custody of his father, who agreed to answer for his appearance in that city whenever wanted, District Attorney J. L. Fisher recommended that he be released on his own recognizance and that the $1,000 cash bail posted by his father, Thomas Cale, be returned to the latter. This was done and both James Cale and his brother, G. W. Cale, were on the streets this morning. It is supposed to have been the intention to leave for Fond du Lac sometime today. The new trial of Cale in the local municipal court on the charge of holding up and robbing Herman Paschke was adjourned by consent of the attorneys to November 30.

CLARK APPOINTED BY DAVIDSON YESTERDAY

Rock County Resident Made State Veterinarian by the Governor Late Monday Afternoon.

Late Monday afternoon Governor Davidson appointed Dr. D. B. Clark of Janesville state veterinarian to succeed Dr. David Roberts of Waukesha, resigned. Dr. Clark's appointment comes as a result of his hard work as assistant veterinarian for the past five years and upon the recommendation of both the state board of agriculture and the state livestock commission.

Dr. Clark was born in the town of Harmony and grew to manhood on his father's farm. He graduated from the Chicago Veterinary College with the class of 1903 and immediately became a partner of the late Dr. Evan D. Roberts of this city, being appointed assistant state veterinarian almost immediately.

With the exception of a little over a year, in 1905, when he resided in Columbia, Columbia county, he has made his headquarters in Janesville. Upon the death of Dr. Evan Roberts and the appointment of his brother, Dr. David Roberts, Dr. Clark was re-appointed assistant and upon Dr. Roberts' resignation November first he has handled the duties of the office until his appointment yesterday.

He was married several years ago to Miss Gibson and resides at 222 Washington street. He will continue to make Janesville his home, although Madison will be the official headquarters. The office pays $2,200 and his appointment is to fill out Dr. Roberts' unexpired term until June next.

He is a son of David Clark, who moved from Harmony to Janesville seven years ago and resides on Milton avenue. Two brothers live in Harmony. Dr. Clark left for Madison this morning to assume the official duties of his office.

His first official order was issued late yesterday when eighteen head of dairy cattle were ordered sent to Milwaukee for slaughter at the abattoir owing to the fact they were suffering from tuberculosis. Just at the present time the dairymen delivering milk to patrons in Madison are busy having their herds tested as prescribed by the city milk ordinance and this herd to be killed today is one of the largest shipments thus made.

JUDGE REFUSED TO EXTEND THE TIME

For Taking Appeal in the Case of McGowan vs. Paul—Defendants Prejudiced.

Judge Grimm this morning refused the motion for an extension of the time for taking an appeal in the McGowan case of McGowan vs. Paul. This was the case in which the plaintiff applied for an injunction restraining the town from paying for electric lighting and sidewalks with money which had been raised by taxes for that purpose.

The judge decided that the town had the power in question and that the plaintiff made a motion that the time for appeal be extended in order to allow the plaintiff to take the matter to the supreme court.

In his opinion Judge Grimm said that he would have allowed the bill of exceptions to have been perfected, though the time had expired, only that the defendant relying upon the decision had expended money and that by allowing the perfection of a bill of exceptions he would be prejudiced.

The partition action of Schumacher vs. Costello was tried today. The action was to decide who were the heirs at law and also the amounts which each heir should pay of a certain mechanics' lien. The case was taken under advisement.

Copyright, 1907, by Robert W. Chambers.

It was all very well for awhile, a brave, sweet effort, but ears could not remain deaf to the increasing noise and laughter, to familiar voices, half caught phrases, indistinct even in the fragments understood. Besides, Gerald had seen them, and the boy's face had become almost ghastly.

Allie, unaccountably flushed, was conducting herself without restraint. Neergard's snickering laugh grew more significant and persistent. Even Rosamund spoke too loudly at moments, and once she looked around at Nina and Selwyn while her pretty, innocent laughter, rippling with its undertone of malice, became more frequent in the increasing tumult.

There was no use in making a pretense of further gaiety. Austin had begun to speak again. Nina, with one shocked glance at Allie, leaned over toward her brother:

"It is incredible!" she murmured.

"She must be perfectly mad to make such an exhibition of herself. Can't anybody stop her? Can't anybody send her home?"

Austin said sullenly, but distinctly:

"The thing for us to do is to get out. Nina, if you are ready."

"But—what about Gerald?" faltered Eileen, turning pleadingly to Selwyn.

"We can't leave him—there!" The man straightened up and turned his drawn face toward her:

"Do you wish me to get him?"

"Yes, you can do that, can you?"

"Yes, I can, if you wish it. Do you think there is anything in the world I can't do, if you wish it?"

As he rose she laid her hand on his arm.

"I don't ask it"—she began.

"You do not have to ask it," he said, with a smile almost gentler. "Austin, I'm going to get Gerald, and Nina will explain to you that he's to be left to me if any sermon is required. I'll go back with him in the motor boat. Doubtless, you'll drive home in my place."

As he turned, still smiling and self-possessed, Eileen whispered rapidly:

"Don't go. I care for you too much to let it."

He said under his breath, "Dearest, you cannot understand."

"Yes, I do! Don't go. Philip, don't go near her."

"I must."

"If you do—if you go—how can you care for me as you say you do when I ask you not to—when I cannot endure to?"

She turned swiftly and stared across at Allie, and Allie, unsteady in the flushed brilliancy of her youthful beauty, half rose in her seat and stared back.

Instinctively the young girl's hand tightened on Selwyn's arm. "She—she is beautiful," she faltered, but he turned and led her from the table, following Austin, his sister and Lancelot, and she clung to him almost convulsively when he halted on the edge of the lawn.

"I must go back," he whispered; "dearest, dearest, I must."

"To Gerald or her?"

But he only muttered: "They don't know what they're doing. Let me go, Eileen—gently detaching her fingers, which left her hands lying in both of his."

She said, looking up at him: "If you go—if you go—whatever they say you return—no matter what hour—knock at my door. Do you promise? I shall be awake. Do you promise?"

"Yes," he said, with a trace of impatience, the only hint of his anger at the prospect of the duty before him.

So she went away with Nina and Austin and Boots, and Selwyn turned back, sauntering quietly toward the table where already the occupants had apparently forgotten "Am and the end."

"I must go back," he whispered; "dearest, dearest, I must."

"To Gerald or her?"

But he only muttered: "They don't know what they're doing. Let me go, Eileen—gently detaching her fingers, which left her hands lying in both of his."

She said, looking up at him: "If you go—if you go—whatever they say you return—no matter what hour—knock at my door. Do you promise? I shall be awake. Do you promise?"

"Yes," he said, with a trace of impatience, the only hint of his anger at the prospect of the duty before him.

So she went away with Nina and Austin and Boots, and Selwyn turned back, sauntering quietly toward the table where already the occupants had apparently forgotten "Am and the end."

BABY'S ITCH EASILY CURED

Infantile Eczema Quickly Relieved by External Use of Oil of Wintergreen Compound.

Infantile eczema, which has baffled the skill of the best physicians for so many years at last seems to be curable—and curable with great ease. Results of the last two years indicate conclusively that baby's itch, infantile eczema and other skin diseases of children can be very simply cured by the application of a compound composed of oil of wintergreen, thymol and glycerine, as in D. D. D. Prescription.

The Rev. Lewis Stealey, of Weatherly, Pa., writes:

"Our baby boy's little face was so dreadfully covered with eczema that blood and water ran from the sores nearly all the time. After using 3-4 bottles of D. D. D. Prescription we are so happy to tell you he is entirely cured and the disfigurement has never broken out again. If this letter is in any way a help to other sufferers, you may publish it."

If you have a child which is suffering with this terrible itch, we are sure you will not neglect one hour to give your baby the right kind of relief. We have seen too often how quickly the remedy mentioned above takes the itch away at once and how all the cures seem to be permanent; we have seen this too often to hesitate at all in recommending the remedy for your children.

sade in the motor boat. He was with the necessity of half a dozen more men.

When Selwyn approached, Neergard saw him first, stared at him and called out, but he greeted everybody with smiling composure, nodding to those he knew, a little more formally to Mrs. Ruthven, and coolly pulling up a chair, seated himself beside Gerald.

"Doubtless has driven home with the others," he said in a low voice. "I'm going back in the motor boat with you. Don't worry about Austin. Are you ready?"

The boy had evidently let the whole alone or else he had not noticed him, for he looked terribly white and tired.

"Yes," he said, "I'll go when you wish. I suppose they'll never forgive me for this. Come on."

"One moment, then," nodded Selwyn. "I want to speak to Mrs. Ruthven."

And, quietly turning to Allie and dropping his voice to a tone too low for Neergard to hear, he was plainly attempting to listen:

"You are making a mistake. Do you understand? Whoever is your hostess, wherever you are staying, find her and go there before it is too late."

She inclined her pretty head thoughtfully, eyes on the wings which she was turning round and round between her slender fingers. "What do you mean by 'too late'?" she asked. "Don't you know that everything is too late for me now?"

"What do you mean, Allie?" he returned, watching her intently.

"What I say, I have not seen Jack Ruthven for two months. Do you know what that means? I have not heard from him for two months. Do you know what that means? No? Well, I'll tell you, Philip. It means that when I do hear from him it will be through his attorneys."

He turned slightly paler. "Why?"

"Divorced," she said, with a reckless little laugh, "and the end of things for me."

"On what grounds?" he demanded doggedly. "Does he threaten you?"

She made no movement or reply, recalling there, one hand on her wing, the smile still curving her lips. And he repeated his question in a low, distinct voice, too low for Neergard to hear, and he was still listening.

"Grounds? Oh, he thinks I've misbehaved with—never mind who. It is not true, but he cares nothing about that either. You see, and she bent nearer confidentially, with a mysterious little nod of her pretty head—"you see, Jack Ruthven is a little insane. You are surprised? Fool! I've suspected it for months."

"He stared at her. Then, 'Where are you stopping?'"

"Abroad the Mohrman."

"Is Mrs. Fane a guest there too?"

He spoke loud enough for Neergard to hear, and she answered for herself, with a smile at him brimful of malice:

"Delighted to have you come aboard, Captain Selwyn. Is that what you are asking permission to do?"

"Thanks," he returned dryly, and to Allie, "If you are ready, Gerald and I will take you over to the Mohrman in the motor boat."

"Oh, no, you won't!" broke in Neergard, with a sneer. "You'll mind your own business, my intrusive friend, and I'll take care of my guests without your assistance."

Selwyn appeared not to hear him. "Come on, Gerald," he said pleasantly; "Mrs. Ruthven is going over to the Mohrman."

"For God's sake," whispered Gerald, white as a sheet, "don't force me into trouble with Neergard."

Selwyn turned on him an astonished gaze. "Are you afraid of that whelp?"

"Yes," muttered the boy. "I'll explain later, but don't force things now. I beg you."

Mrs. Ruthven coolly leaned over and spoke to Gerald in a low voice; then to Selwyn she said, with a smile: "Neergard and I are going to Brookline anyway, so you and Gerald need not wait. And thank you for coming over. It was rather nice of you."

She glanced insolently at Neergard—"considering the crowd we're with. Good night, Captain Selwyn. Good night, Gerald. So very jolly to have seen you again!"

And under her breath to Selwyn: "You need not worry. I am going in a moment. Goodby, and—thank you, Phil. It is good to see somebody of one's own caste again."

A few moments later Selwyn and Gerald in their obstinate dash toward the motor boat south of the Narrows.

The boy seemed deathly tired and they crossed the "lim" later at Silver-side. Once on the veranda steps he stumbled, and Selwyn's arm sustained him, but the older man forbore to question him, and Gerald, tight lipped and haggard, offered no confidence until at the door of his bedroom he turned and laid an unsteady hand on Selwyn's shoulder and said: "I am in a very bad fix. I want to talk with you tomorrow. May I?"

"You know you may, Gerald. I am always ready to stand your friend."

At the end of the corridor Selwyn halted before Eileen's room. A light came through the transom. He waited a moment, then knocked very softly.

DEMOCRATS WERE TOO STINGY.

Campaign Fund Short and Mack Will Pay the Difference.

New York, Nov. 17.—The contributions of the Democratic national committee during the presidential campaign recently ended were not sufficient to meet the expenses of the campaign, according to Norman E. Mack, chairman of the committee. Mr. Mack said Monday that he would make the deficit good out of his own pocket and that he would regard it as a personal obligation to see that every bill was paid. A statement of the receipts and expenditures of the committee will be filed with the secretary of the state at Albany on November 24.

To a reporter who asked Mr. Mack who was going to pay for the maintenance of permanent Democratic headquarters which are to be opened soon, either in Washington or New York, Mr. Mack said: "The Democratic party of the United States is going to pay for it. I have had offers from every state in the union to contribute to a fund for the purpose."
